SHIFT OF WIND SAVES EMBARGO

Last of Herring Fleet at Bay of Islands
Hustle to Sea as Wind Blows the Ice Off Shore—Season is Over.

The remainder of the herring fleet at Bay of Islands have cleared from that port and are now on their way home, sch. Bohemia the last of the fleet leaving yesterday. All of the crafts have herring, it is understood, although some were unable to secure full cargoes.

Saturday news was received here

Bay of Islands Herring Notes.

Weather conditions of late have greatly hampered the fishermen. While the herring were plentiful in North Arm last week, the fishermen could get to their nets only on Wednesday and Saturday.

Herring struck into Middle Arm again last week and some of the boats in Goose Arm had as high as 20 barrels on Thursday. The Alexandra, Capt. Shaw, has her fore hold filled with frozen herring and some in the after hold. The Artisan, chartered by Capt. Ross and others, has her fore hold full, and the Benjamin J. Smith has about 400 barrels of frozen herring. These are the only vessels in Middle Arm.

The price now being paid for green herring is $2.25 per barrel from the boats, and 60 cents a basket for frozen herring. It is said that some fishermen are getting $2.50 per barrel for green herring and 75 cents a basket for frozen.

On Saturday horses crossed over the ice in the Humber Arm for the first time this season.

Last week before the ice on the Humber became thoroughly safe several persons fell through it and narrowly escaped drowning.

Capt. T. M. Nicholson of Bucksport, Me., arrived at Port aux Basques on Sunday, and came to Bay of Islands yesterday by the s.s. Seal.

The s.s. Seal on her recent sailing from Bay of Islands took about 1350 barrels of pickled herring to Halifax.

The fishermen are beginning to break off from the voyage for this season, and daily some of them are leaving for their homes.

The s.s. Wren, Capt. Forward, is at North Arm, and is rendering valuable assistance to the American skippers and the fishermen. We understand that it is Capt. Forward's intention to procure, if possible, a cargo of frozen herring before leaving the Bay.—Western Star, January 5.

that the dreaded ice had made its appearance on the coast, hemming in the crafts. A shift in the wind drove the ice off shore and allowed in a dash to the sea except Bohemia.

A telegram received by here later, announced that the Bohemia got away, having a full cargo. The season at Bay of Islands is now close.

SHOWING NEW SEINE DE

James A. Cromwell of Boston and W. Jones of New York visited the city Saturday demonstrating a new vessel owners an arrangement which is claimed will improve present mackerel seine. It consists of a large piece of canvas hung from the bottom of the seine. Not exactly an apron but similar to a device tried years ago. Capt. Lemuel Firth in sch. Rob Roy tried the seine on one trip last summer.

Ready for Maiden Trip

The new sch. Robert and Capt. Robert Wharton, is ready halibuting on her maiden voyage.

Is Loaded For Boston

British schooner Mary D. Yon left Bay of Islands, N. F., with a cargo of frozen herring, consigned to Boston parties.

Derivation of "Finnan Haddock"

Those who have tasted that dish, Finnan haddock, know little of its origin. Its correct name is sea haddock, derived from the sea lagoon of Findon, lying on the coast some six miles south of Aberdeen. Portland Express & Advertiser.
